BOSTON — Life takes courage. The will to live life to its fullest takes a lot more. At a special graduation ceremony at a Boston hospital, U.S. Marine Corps Col. Keith L. Cieri received his Naval War College diploma June, surrounded by family, friends and fellow Marines.

The graduation ceremony took place in the chapel at the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center where Cieri is a patient.

"It was an honor to be part of this," said Lt. Cmdr. Paul Shaughnessey, U.S. Navy Chaplain. "Col. Cieri is a special person and an outstanding Marine."

Cieri is undergoing chemotherapy and other treatments for a rare case of biliary cancer. The condition prohibits him from graduating with his class at the college in Newport today. Therefore, faculty and staff decided to bring the graduation to him last week.

COL. CIERI receives congratulations after receiving his Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies and Joint Professional Military Education certification.

"Keith is an inspiration to us," said Marine Col. Scott Loch. "He continues to be an outstanding Marine while providing important lessons in living life to its fullest."

Fellow student, U.S. Army Col. Robert Powell, recalled Cieri's fierce determination and positive attitude. "Col. Cieri is a strong person and Marine. He is truly a unique example to us all," he said.

In addition to the conferring of his Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies, Cieri was presented with a certificate recognizing successful completion of Joint Professional Military Education - Phase II.

Cieri thanked his Marine Corps family and fellow students for not only joining him for the ceremony, but always supporting his family and him.

"We love each other," said Cieri. "Above everything else, Marines come first. We take care of each other."

Semper Fidelis.

CNO considered for next Chairman of Joint Chiefs

American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON (NNS) — Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates announced June 8 that he will recommend that President Bush nominate Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Mike Mullen to replace Marine Gen. Peter Pace as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Mullen was one of several featured speakers this week for the Current Strategy Forum at the Naval War College.

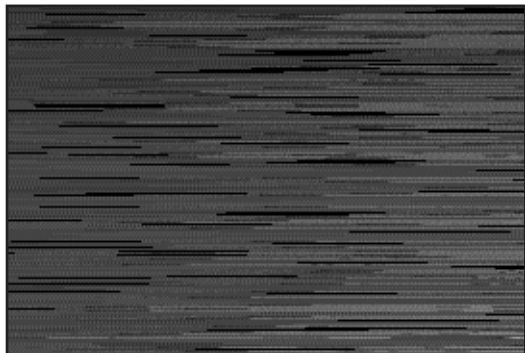

In a Pentagon news conference, Gates said he also will recommend Marine Gen. James E.

Cartwright for the position of vice chairman. Cartwright is the commander of U.S. Strategic Command. Navy Adm. Edmund P. Giambastiani Jr., the current vice chairman, announced his decision to retire last week.

"I have become well acquainted with Admiral Mullen over the last six months and believe he has the strategic insight, experience and integrity to lead America's armed forces," Gates said.

Gates said he intended to renominate Pace and Giambastiani but after consulting with senators of both parties came to the following conclusions:

"Because General Pace has served as chairman and vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of

He said the confirmation process would have the possibility of being quite contentious.

"I am no stranger to contentious confirmations, and I do not shrink from them," Gates said. "However, I have decided at this moment in our history the nation, our men

529 to graduate from War College

NWC Public Affairs Office

Adm. James G. Stavridis, Commander, U.S. Southern Command, will address the 529 graduates of the Naval War College at ceremonies today at 10 a.m. on Dewey Field.

The NWC graduating Class of 2007 includes officers from the U.S. Navy, U.S. Marine Corps, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Army and U.S. Coast Guard; civilians from various government agencies; and international students representing 64 countries. Many graduates will take high level assignments in command of ships and squadrons, or as members of strategic planning staffs.

Graduates have completed the Naval War College's rigorous academic program. Their core curriculum consists of courses in Strategy and Policy, Joint Military Operations and National Security Decision Making. Along with these courses, students are challenged in elective courses that cover a variety of subjects. The curriculum features seminar-based coursework that promotes invigorating debate and in-depth discussion on global case studies.

Adm. Stavridis is a surface warfare officer and served at sea aboard carriers, cruisers, and destroyers. He is a 1976 distinguished graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. He earned a doctorate in philosophy and a master's in law and diplomacy from The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University in 1984 where he won the Gullion Prize as outstanding student. He is also a 1992 distinguished graduate from the Naval War College.

SECNAV says Navy should think global

By RICHARD ALEXANDER
Navalog editor

The Secretary of the Navy urged delegates to the Naval War College's 58th annual Current Strategy Forum this week to discuss "the bigger picture" of how the Department of the Navy figures into a non-maritime, global strategy for U.S. national security in the years ahead.

Dr. Donald Winter was the keynote speaker for a capacity audience of 1,400 in Spruance Hall, with overflow in Pringle Hall linked by closed circuit TV.

The request fit the theme for this year's forum, "Global Responses to Global Challenges: Toward a New Maritime Strategy." It follows Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Mike Mullen's discussions with his counterparts at the International Seapower Symposium in September 2005, and his call at last year's forum to develop a new U.S. maritime strategy. It must recognize the interconnected nature of the global world economy and the important roles and missions of the U.S. maritime services — the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard — will have in the 21st century.

Winter reflected on how the Great White Fleet in the early 1900s left a worldwide impression and showed Americans that the country's security and place in the world required a strong naval capability.

He said the Navy today continues its goodwill gestures, by rushing aid to earthquake and tsunami-stricken areas, evacuating civilians from nations in sectarian feuds, and keeping the hospital ships USNS Mercy

NHCNE recognizes Sailors of Quarter

By KATHY MACKNIGHT
NHCNE Public Affairs Officer

Hospitalman Matthew Specht, the Blue Jacket of the Quarter for January to March 2007; and Hospital Corpsman 3rd Class Troy Lindsay, the Junior Sailor of the Quarter for January to March 2007 at the Naval Health Clinic New England were recognized in ceremonies last week by Capt. Patricia Goodin, Commanding Officer.

Hospitalman Specht reported to NHCNE Newport in May 2004 and is assigned as an orthopedic technician within Surgical Services. Specht assisted with 850 orthopedic procedures and provided three in-service training sessions to the Surgical Services staff.

He frequently managed the Orthopedic Clinic by himself, providing assistance to two orthopedic surgeons and one podiatrist. He also assisted the podiatrist with 72 procedures during monthly visits to Naval Branch Health Clinic, Groton.

As an assistant command fitness leader he monitored 15 Sailors assigned to the Fitness Enhancement Program and he also volunteered his off duty time to help in the set-up of the new gym equipment within the NHCNE clinic.

Declassified documents unveil 1905 Russian warship’s mutiny

By KEN OHRSTROM
NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

The American author who wrote the only documentary on one of the deadliest mutinies in Russian navy history, spoke last week at the third in the Eight Bells Lecture Series program at the Naval War College Museum.

The lecture and book signing June 6 featured Neal Bascomb, author of Red Mutiny: Eleven Fateful Days on the Battleship Potemkin.

The book chronicles the 1905 incident when the Russian battleship succumbed to mutiny when its sailors defied their corrupt hierarchy of the Soviet navy and seized control of the ship marked by the raising of the red flag of the Communist Revolution.

Red Mutiny is the only book on the subject to make use of newly declassified material from the Soviet archives to accurately depict one of the “deadliest mutinies in history.” Until now only a one-sided version of the Potemkin tale has been told.

Recently, Bascomb was given permission to view sensitive material gathered by the Russians and other western nations on the Potemkin incident to accurately portray the mutiny and depict an epic tale..

The result is a compelling, well paced and plotted story that reads like a thriller. The account features naval battles, heroic sacrifices, treachery, bloodlust and a cry for freedom.

Bascomb also authored the Perfect Mile and Higher: a Historic Race to the Sky and Making of a City. He is a former book editor and overseas journalist for the New York Times and other publications. He has appeared in documentaries on the A&E channel and History channel. Copies of Red Mutiny can be purchased for a limited time at the Naval War College Museum store, in town, or online.

The Eight Bells Lecture series is free and open to the general public with advance notification to the NWC Museum. The next lecture will be July 30 at noon and feature Leviathan: the History of Whaling in America by author Eric J. Dolin.

Announcements

Meyerkord Avenue due for detour into August

Meyerkord Avenue from Whipple Street north to the intersection of Meyerkord and Brett Street will be closed from June 25 through Aug. 3 for installation of utilities.

Brett Street will be open for traffic heading onto Coddington Point and “training country.”

Drivers are reminded to watch out for construction teams and pay special attention to any additional signage.

Free ‘tween’ concert offered at Sub Base

GROTON, Conn. — Girl Authority, a singing group of nine girls, will perform free at the Dealey Theater at U.S. Submarine Base Groton, New London, Conn., on Saturday, June 30, at 6 p.m.

Fresh off the March 2007 release of their second CD, Road Trip, the 9 to 14-year-olds perform fun-infused cover songs both pre-teens and parents will love, as well as all-new original material with positive messages.

Intricate dance choreography and fashion-forward outfits add to the spectacle, as the girls sing favorites such as Life Is A Highway, Girls Just Wanna Have Fun, and We Are Family.

For tickets or information, call the Groton ITT Office at (860) 694-3238.

Two NWC Marines receive Bronze Stars in ceremony

By MC1 MARK O'DONALD
Naval War College Public Affairs

Gen. James T. Conway, Commandant of the Marine Corps., presented Bronze Star medals to two senior students this week at Naval War College ceremonies.

Lt. Col. Patrick G. Looney received the Bronze Star (a Gold Star in lieu of second award) for heroic achievement in connection with combat operations against the enemy when he was Commanding Officer, Third Battalion, Fifth Marines, Regimental Combat Team Five, First Marine Expeditionary Force (Forward) in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. Among other incidences, Looney was recognized for exemplary leadership during nine attacks on his personal security detachment by improvised explosive devices.

Lt. Col. Philippe D. Rogers received the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement in connection with combat operations involving conflict with an opposing force while serving as Assistant Chief of Staff G-3, Third Marine Aircraft Wing (Forward), First Marine Expeditionary Force (Forward) in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Rogers was recognized for supervision of various aspects of support for Operation Restore Order thus directly contributing to its success. He was also recognized for being the driving force behind the prioritization, approval and completion of new construction, repair and force protection projects for Al Asad Air Base and Al Taqaddum Air Base.

The Marine-specific ceremony followed an address by Gen. Conway to Naval War College students.

"I am pleased and proud to recognize these fine Marines," said Conway, "especially before this contingent of similar individuals."

Prior to reading a list of names of unit members killed in action, Col. Looney said, "This medal is not for me. It's for our entire unit, including those that were lost."

Submarine's crew surfaces at school

PORTSMOUTH — Cmdr. Stephen M. Gillespie, Commanding Officer, and 12 members of the Gold Crew of the fleet ballistic missile submarine USS Rhode Island, spoke with Portsmouth Middle School children last Monday morning.

The crewmembers talked about their various jobs and responsibilities on board the submarine, and answered questions from the youngsters.

After the assembly in the school's Little Theater, the crew had lunch with the Grade 5 class of teacher Mrs. Cindy Jilling.

The USS Rhode Island, commissioned at Pier Two, Naval Station Newport in 1994, is currently based in Kings Bay, Ga. She was christened by Kati Machtley, wife of former U.S. Rep. Ronald Machtley, in July 1993. As sponsor, she has brought either the Blue or Gold Crew back to Rhode Island most every year to visit Rhode Islanders, and march in local parades.

The fifth graders at Portsmouth Middle School have become pen pals of the crews over the past seven years.

In addition, the school's Grade 6, 7 and 8 students have also corresponded with the Gold Crew this past year. Gillespie spoke to the students last October and spent time with teacher Joao Arruda's Grade 8 language students in a lively question and answer session.

The Middle School students have also sent both Blue and Gold crew members artwork, holiday cards, and their favorite candy, "Jolly Ranchers."

The crewmen and Gillespie marched in the 43rd Gaspee Days Parade last Saturday in Pawtuxet, which marks the anniversary of the first overt action by the colonists in 1772 that led to the Revolutionary War. A scale replica of the British revenue schooner HMS Gaspee was torched and set adrift offshore.

Besides the Portsmouth Middle School, Portsmouth Boy Scout Troop 82 and Cub Pack 50, under the supervision of Mrs. Deidre Ricci have been faithfully sending the crews of the USS Rhode Island later, magazines and artwork over the past several years. Many of the scouts attended the assembly last Monday.

Also, children and members of the First Presbyterian Church in Newport have send cards and packages to both crews while they are deployed at sea for months at a time .

The Friends of the USS Rhode Island sponsored a dinner for the crew last Sunday night at the Officers' Club.

Family Day serves up fun at Ft. Adams

A Newport Artillery Company officer stands sentry duty outside the Fort Adams' main gate last Sunday as the Family Day at Fort Adams gets underway. The free event, postponed from Saturday, saluted the sacrifices of military families.

By RICHARD ALEXANDER
Navalog editor

With huge balloons flying overhead, dozens of families circulated through the booths and static displays at the annual Family Day at Fort Adams last Sunday at the historic fortifications overlooking Narragansett Bay.

The annual event, postponed from Saturday, salutes all military families making sacrifices for their country.

While Robo and Tails the clowns drew a steady line for face painting, and kids entertainer Mifflin Lowe sang the "Rhino Rap" and other children's songs; the R.I. National Guard supervised a rock climbing wall outside the north gates; and kids climbed aboard the Coast Guard's 25-foot response boat .

A big hit was the petting zoo from Simms Farm of alpacas, pigs, goats and sheep.

The newly-restored youth overnight barracks inside the fort's thick casemates , displayed rows of new wood bunkbeds. The Ft. Adams gift shop was also open to the public.

Newport Little Leaguer Trey Ogden, 8, of Fort Adams military housing, lets a fastball go in the Speed Pitch cage.

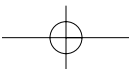

George Fregeau of Canines for Combat Veterans treats Greta, a 2-year-old golden retriever, to a dog yummy. The organization trains dogs for deaf and disabled veterans.

Children's entertainer Mifflin Lowe plays guitar while kids dance on the lawn inside the fortifications.

Entertainer ‘Adam McAdams’ leads children in a rhyming game to remember all the names of presidents of the United States.

Family Day—

Policemen did kids fingerprinting, sponsored by MetLife; and young athletes tried either the speed baseball pitch or football pass cages. The inflated moon bounce had a steady line of kids. Mister Button helped kids make their own pin-on buttons.

Besides Lowe, there was live entertainment all afternoon, including story tellers and puppeteers.

Demonstrations and displays included a sheep herding demonstration by the SVF Foundation; Eastern Mountain Sports kayak school information; and the Fort Adams Trust.

Gully, the mascot seagull for the Newport Gulls baseball team, mingled with the kids, who also stopped by to pet Greta, a 2-year-old golden retriever with Canines for Disabled Combat Veterans

George ‘Doc’ Fregeau of Leominster, Mass., said the organization partners assistance dogs with people with physical disabilities or various degrees of deafness to enhance independence and social interaction.

“A trained dog can cost $10,000,” he said. “but with donations from individuals and businesses, we can provide dogs at no cost to qualified veterans.”

There also was food and refreshment vendors, and craft tables.

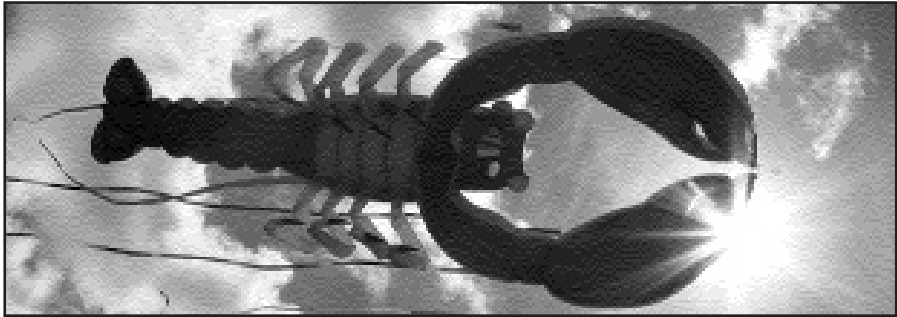

The event was sponsored by the People’s Credit Union; Carey, Richmond & Viking Insurance; Merrill Lynch; the Newport Tent Company; The Newport Daily News; MVYradio of Martha’s Vineyard; NewportFed and Bank Newport.

Eli Lauzon-Aredito, 3, pets a couple of goats in the Petting Zoo provided by Simms Farm. Other animals included sheep, pigs and alpacas.

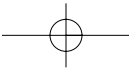

Luke Voorheis, 6, tries the helm of a Coast Guard 25-foot Response Boat-Small (RBS) with assistance from Boatswain’s Mate 3rd Class Bonnie Gonzalez, Coast Guard Station Castle Hill.

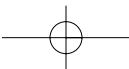

A huge lobster balloon kite flies overhead outside the fort’s north wall.

Mifflin Lowe, children’s music entertainer, leads the audience in a sing-along, ‘The King Who Forgot His Underpants.’

Hot damn, when Newport Life Magazine throws a soiree, get your soiree shoes on.

One June 7, Newport County's finest shined at Rosecliff Mansion to toast the magazine's recent "Best Of Newport County" gold star winners. We no shed on tasty treats from some real winners and knocked back boozy libations generously provided by Svedka Vodka, Newport Vineyards, and Narragansett Brewing Co. We then had a sweet treat and a jolt of caffeine by the freshest coffeehouse in town, Custom House Coffee.

The Blast crew had a blast people watching. The lovely ladies of Invidia and Ki-Ra salon were represented by coming in large numbers and wearing their hair very well. Gustave White was literally in the house, all thirty-eight of them that came! We also saw a large contingency of the highly respected Tall Ships RI crew. More on Page 16...

Coslick paces 5k runners

By GREG KOHLWEISS
NAVSTA Public Affairs Staff

Quartermaster 2nd Class Robert Coslick, 25, an officer candidate in the Naval Science Institute at Officer Training Command Newport, and civilian Katrina Utz, 19, of Middletown were the top winners in the male and female categories of the Newport Chapter of the Surface Navy Association 77th running of the 5k By the Bay last Friday.

Coslick finished in 17:04, and Utz in 20:31 in a field of about 135 runners.

The race began and ended at Arleigh Burke Hall, Surface Warfare Officers School Command (SWOSCOLCOM), was open to the public, and followed a course designed with views of Narragansett Bay and the Newport Bridge.

Trophies were awarded to the top three finishers in each age category, for overall male and female winners, for ages 17 and under, 18 to 29, 30 to 39, 40 to 49; the Clydesdale Division for men and the Filly Division for women; plus team competition with a minimum of five runners per team.

Navy College reminds Sailors of FAFSA deadline

SILVERDALE, Wash. (NNS) — The Naval Base Kitsap (NBK) Navy College office warned students that the upcoming deadline for submitting federal student aid applications is due July 2.

The application is lengthy and requires tax return information, so students are encouraged to have their most recent W-2s handy.

If a student is under the age of 25 or single, they will also need their parents' tax returns to successfully complete the application.

To fill out a FAFSA online, students may go to <http://www.fafsa.ed.gov>. For more information contact a school advisor or a Navy College counselor.

Navy's new riverine force marks first anniversary

NORFOLK (NNS) — The Navy's riverine force marked its one-year anniversary May 25.

Riverine Group (RIVGRU) 1 and Riverine Squadron (RIVRON) 1 were both formally established May 25, 2006, under Navy Expeditionary Combat Command (NECC). The establishment brought together Sailors from diverse backgrounds to begin a transformation from blue water to brown water Sailors.

That transformation also took the riverine force from a concept a year ago, to a mission-capable combat force that is currently contributing to the global war on terrorism.

"The riverine force has gone from a small group of Sailors in Little Creek a year ago to three active squadrons, one conducting operations in Iraq," said Capt. Michael Jordan, RIVGRU 1 commander.

Following several months of training in combat skills, small-unit riverine craft operations and cultural and language skills, RIVRON 1 Advance Party deployed Feb. 13 to Iraq and RIVRON 1 Main Body deployed March 8 to Iraq, where they are conducting integrated maritime combat operations with Marines, Soldiers, Coalition Forces, Iraqi Army, and Iraqi Police.

"We exemplify the modern success of the Navy-Marine Corps team, and we have increased the Navy's relevance in Iraq and in the war on terror," said Cmdr. William Guarini, RIVRON 1 commanding officer.

RIVRON 2, established Feb. 2, is presently conducting unit-level training at Camp Lejeune, N.C. Riverine Squadron 3, based at Naval Weapons Station Yorktown will stand up formally in early July.

Vice Adm. Fowler relieves Rempt at Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (NNS) — Vice Adm. Jeffrey L. Fowler relieved Vice Adm. Rodney P. Rempt as Superintendent of the United States Naval Academy during a change of command ceremony held in Alumni Hall on June 8.

Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Mike Mullen praised Rempt's accomplishments during his four years at the Naval Academy, commending his focus on developing midshipmen as combat leaders of character.

Rempt, a surface warfare officer and a 1966 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, became the 59th superintendent of the U.S. Naval Academy in August 2003. He is a former Naval War College president.

"I am eternally indebted to the finest faculty in the country," said Rempt. "Pam [Rempt] and I are going to miss you all."
